

We remotely triggered this slide from 75 ft away. We heard a big collapse and saw the slope avalanche a few seconds later. Strong winds over the past few days have created stiff wind slabs which are resting over weak faceted snow. These slopes will be especially sensitive the weight of skier or rider. Photo GNFAC

Advisory Region
Southern Madison
Longitude
-111.34W
Latitude
44.84N

Forecast link: GNFAC Avalanche Advisory for Fri Jan 20, 2012

Southern Madison, 2012-01-19